

ACTIVITY HANDOUT: PROMOTING DISABILITY-INCLUSIVE ATTITUDES (ANSWERS)

[MODULE 1: Understanding Disability and Inclusion]

For each type of negative attitude, come up with a more disability-inclusive statement that a health worker can say instead.

Negative attitudes	Disability-inclusive attitudes
1. Inferiority: Believing people with disability are inferior because of their impairment. "We usually see the mothers with disability after we have seen all of the other patients because if they miss out on an appointment it doesn't matter as much for them."	Approach: People with disability have equal entitlement to health care as all other people under the UNCRPD. Statement: "Mothers with disabilities are entitled to be seen at our MAMI clinic like all other mothers. We will make sure they get the health services they need."
2. Fear and avoidance: Avoiding a person with disability because of fear of saying or doing the "wrong" thing. "When a mother who is deaf or hard of hearing comes to the MAMI clinic, I leave her to be seen by the other staff. I don't know sign language and I am worried I won't be able to communicate with her."	Approach: Try our best to communicate with all patients and find alternative ways of communicating if required. Don't worry about saying the wrong thing – it is more important to try to communicate and find out what their needs are than to always "get it right". Statement: "When a mother who is deaf or hard of hearing comes to the MAMI clinic, although I don't know sign language, I can still find a way to communicate with her."
3. Stereotyping: Assuming what people with disabilities need or do not need "No need for a screening. Refer this mother with disability to specialized services because she most likely struggles with feeding her infant."	Approach: Offer people with disabilities the same access to health services as others. Make referrals based on actual needs or on what they request and do not make assumptions. Statement: "I will offer this mother and her infant the same access to MAMI screening and assessment just like all mothers and infants. Just because the mother has a disability, it does not imply the infant is nutritionally at risk."
4. Denial: Not believing a person with disability or recognizing the impact of the impairment	Approach: Not all disabilities are visible. Listen to our patients when they communicate what their specific needs

or denying reasonable accommodation where needed. "This mother says she has a disability, but she looks the same as everyone else to me. Why should I spend longer counseling her?"	are and provide reasonable accommodation when required. Statement: "It is important that I accommodate the needs of this mother. I will take the time to communicate with her in a way she understands, and I will make sure she has time to process information and ask any questions that she has."
5. Pity: Feeling sorry for a person with disability, leading to patronizing behavior "When I see infants with disabilities at the MAMI clinic, I feel sorry for their mothers. I talk to them about how hard it must be for them."	Approach: Ask a patient if they need any specific assistance and provide it if requested, but do not insist on helping them or make them feel embarrassed. Statement: "When I see mothers with infants with disabilities at the MAMI clinic, I will ask them if they need any specific assistance but if they say no, I just see them for their MAMI screening the same as all the other infants."

Adapted from: Disability-inclusive health services toolkit: a resource for health facilities in the Western Pacific Region. Manila, Philippines. World Health Organization Regional Office for the Western Pacific. 2020. Licence: CC BY-NC-SA 3.0 IGO.